

Vice President (Agribusiness), Minneapolis

We're looking for a strong, experienced leader to help us grow our already successful Minneapolis-based agribusiness practice. Padilla Speer Beardsley is one of the country's most respected independent public relations and integrated communications consulting firms, known for delivering strategic, results-oriented programs to a wide range of clients across the country.

If you have more than 10 years experience (agency strongly preferred) and are a strategic communicator with a passion for business growth and client service, this is an excellent opportunity, with a great team in place and deep agency resources at your disposal. Our ideal candidate will have deep background in agriculture, agribusiness or closely related fields and a track record of excellent client service, account management and staff development. We offer a high-energy, rewarding environment for those with a drive for developing business and building lasting client relationships.

Padilla is a communications and public relations firm with offices in Minneapolis and New York City. We are a multi-specialty agency, with experts in crisis/critical issues management, employee communications, investor relations, market/opinion research, marketing communications, media relations and public affairs. Our clients come from various industries, including agriculture, manufacturing, technology, consumer products, health care, retail, financial and more.

We're an Equal Opportunity Employer and offer excellent benefits. We strive for excellence. We're strategic. We deliver results. We have fun. And we're seeking entrepreneurial individuals who want to grow with us.

Please send cover letter and resume referencing this job to Stephanie Grogg, Padilla Speer Beardsley, resumes@psbpr.com or 1101 West River Parkway, Minneapolis, MN 55415. For more information about Padilla Speer Beardsley, check out our web site at www.psbpr.com.